Range Improvement Planned By Sportsmen; Stream Survey Trip Set; Public Corrals To Be Finished Sept. 13

A range improvement program will be conducted by the Southern Tulare County Sportsmen's association in the Camp Nelson area either this month or the first of next month, it was decided at a meeting of directors held last night at the Elks' lodge in Porterville.

The association will spend $500 to break brush in an area of approximately 30 acres. Object is to knock the brush down so that deer can get to the top shoots during the winter and also to promote the growth of shoots that deer can reach near the ground.

Planned also by the sportsmen was a stream improvement survey, with President John Keck, Past President Earl Gray, Game Warden Ross Welch, Sequoia Forest Supervisor Eldon Ball and Bob Lewis, state department of fish and game, to check the Clicks creek, Boulder creek and Freeman creek areas tomorrow.

Object of the survey is to check possibility of construction of check dams to form small ponds and lakes.

Plans were also made to complete construction of additional public corrals at Quaking Aspen on September 13. Sportsmen who can work on this project are asked to check with Mr. Keck at telephone 583.

Bob Marshall, a past president of the association, reported that 89,000 catchable trout had been planted from Moorehouse hatchery during the current season, with final plan made recently.

Owen Hoover and his famous dancing horse, "Diane," were featured in the recent Santa Barbara Fiesta parade when they were assigned the lead spot in the second section of the parade.

The honor spot was awarded as a result of Mr. Hoover and his dancing horse having pulled more applause, as measured by the applause meter, than any other entry in the 1952 parade.

Only one mounted entry, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's posse, rode

We Only Heard

By BILL RODGERS

TULARE COUNTY'S agricultural report for the 1953 year will have a new category — geese, for this branch of the poultry family has suddenly become a factor in farming in this area . . . Not only has the goose apparently worked out well in this first year of wide-spread use as a cotton chopper, many hundreds of them are now being shipped out of the area for fattening and eventual sale on the commercial market. Seems that goslings do the best job on grass in young cotton, so the plan is to buy young geese along in March, keep them on the cotton through summer, then about the end of August, get rid of them . . . Right now Robert R. Pfost Co., of Fresno, working with Jennings Feed and Farm Supply, is preparing to truck large numbers of geese out of this area. They'll be fattened, then butchered and will be sold, for the most part, on the Los Angeles market, from where they will spread through other markets both as fresh and frozen birds. At this point, turkey growers and producers of meat chickens may raise a questioning eyebrow, because those geese will be in competition with other holiday birds. And already, the goose has become a definite threat to the human cotton chopper. But at the same time, Mr. Pfost, who works the goose business from both ends, is talking of producing 100,000 goslings next season to fill the demand, and if geese for cotton increase, geese for market will also increase. That in turn means that a new industry has been established — the goose industry . . . Whether or not it's a flash in the pan remains to be seen. Talk is that cotton growers claim they save from $15 to $40 per acre by using geese as compared to pay for cotton choppers, and talk further is that already orders are being booked for geese next year. . . . And don't think that the goose boom is confined to Tulare county. There's a roaring market for geese all over the San Joaquin valley; down in the southwest cotton belt, farmers are using large numbers of geese, and in the southern states, where everyone does things the easy way, geese have been used for weed control and eatin' purposes for some little time . . . So 1953 may become the historical year in which the goose stopped being a curiosity in Tulare county and became a business. As long as the producer can make a little money selling goslings to the cotton farmer, and the cotton farmer can get a cheap job of chopping done by geese, and as long as the geese can then make someone a little money by becoming a meat market bird, it's likely the goose industry will expand and prosper.

Range Improvement

FLAT MITE APPEARS AS NEW CITRUS PESTBy Karl W. Opitz
Farm Advisor

Flat mite of citrus, known scientifically as Brevipalpus lewisi, has appeared in several citrus groves throughout Tulare county this summer. In some groves this mite will cause rather extensive fruit damage.

At the present time evidence of infestation by the flat mite may be observed by the white cast skins and tiny fruit scar. Under the magnifying glass the carrot to salmon red mites can be found clustered in depressions or injuries on the fruit. They are most abundant around the stem end. The navel of navel oranges also harbors the mites.

Sulfur treatment in late winter and spring gives excellent control. Since sulfur cannot be safely applied to citrus trees at this time, however, a full coverage spray of oil or of "Sulfenone" should be used.

Control of Brevipalpus mite with 2% summer oil emulsion medium grade is costly and should only be used when other pests are to be treated also.

"Sulfenone" 40% wettable powder 1 pound in 100 gallons of water at the rate of not less than 20 pounds to the acre will give fair protection to citrus fruit at this time. This treatment should be considered in the nature of an emergency.

All citrus growers in all Tulare county districts should include sulfur in their pest control program next season.

Association Makes Final Payments On Prunes, Apricots

Grower-members of the California Prune and Apricot Growers Association are receiving an additional final distribution of $1,534,727 on 1952 crop deliveries, according to Director Frank Pratt, who is also the local representative of the Visalia Prune and Apricot Association.

This final distribution brings to approximately $15,500,000 the total received by association members on their prunes, dried apricots, dried peaches, and dried pears.

The current distribution is a further payment on each grower's entire deliveries and covers all grades and qualities of fruit delivered. The additional payment is at the rate of $27.30 per ton on dried prunes, $25.67 per ton on dried apricots, $62.50 per ton on dried peaches, and $15.91 per Trading was fairly active, but prices on slaughter classes generally 50 cents to $1.00 under one week earlier. Choice 1-2 butchers 180 to 220 pounds secured $25.75 to $26.00, a few 230 to 240 pounds going at $25.10, 250 pound weights at $24.00. Medium sows sold at $18.15.

PAYMENT POLICY

Citrus growers shipping oranges and desert grapefruit through Sun-kist houses will receive immediate advance payment for that portion of their fruit which is sent to processing plants for canning and concentration.

Trend toward earlier marketing of turkeys is continuing this year; growers marketed nine per cent of their crop prior to August 1 this year.

GOOD IRRIGATION ADVISED PRIOR TO WALNUT HARVEST

By John H. Foott
Farm Advisor

First step in preparing for walnut harvest is to irrigate so that the soil will have enough moisture in it to prevent shriveling of the hulls and carry the trees through the harvesting period. Mature walnut trees, planted 48 feet apart, use up about 34 tons of water per acre per day.

If walnut trees are short of moisture during harvest, the hulls will wilt. This is because trees will pull moisture from the hull when they can't get it from the soil. The result is that the hull doesn't crack and drop the nut free. Sometimes these partly wilted hulls will rot, making a mushy stick-tight that stains the shell. Later they will dry down hard on the shell and are almost impossible to remove.

Harvest usually requires from four to six weeks during which time irrigation is impossible. This means the irrigation put on late in August must carry the trees into October. We often have several hot dry spells during late September and the trees will suffer if they don't have sufficient moisture.

Pre-harvest irrigation should include enough irrigation water to wet the ground at least four to six feet deep. It should be applied long enough before the beginning of harvest to permit the ground to be worked down and the surface to become dry before shaking starts.

A $692,000 trout hatchery on Moccasin creek in Tuolumne county will be in operation early next spring, with the new installation to supply 80,000 pounds of catchable sized rainbows annually.

FINS FOR FEATHERS

By Phil The Forester

Game wardens surveying the valley dove hunting prospects (probably on the lookout for a few "sooners" too) prior to the opening of the season said that thousands of birds had moved out due to a cool change in the weather. But they reported still plenty of doves and that hunting success should equal that of last year.

The fish and game commission did not fix the waterfowl regulations at its meeting last Friday because the detailed regulations had not arrived from Washington D. C. As a result there will be a special meeting of the commission in San Francisco on September 10 to do the necessary. Little doubt that the regulations will be the same as previously announced but we like to play it safe so shall wait the short period for details.

In the meantime the waterfowl hunting requirements have arrived from Washington. The complications come about because the California commission must ratify the Washington D. C. rules. While the commission may not make further liberalization, it does have the authority to impose further restrictions and this has been done in the past.

Approval was granted by the commission for the importation of Coosa bass for propagation and later distribution to limited test waters. The first stream to be planted will be San Benito in Monterey county. This fish is related to the black bass but thrives in small streams that are too cold for the small mouth, yet too warm for trout. It is a small stout fish that rarely exceeds one pound in weight. It is highly valued for its fighting ability and eating qualities. The department fishery branch believes it has a definite place in many small California coastal and inland streams which presently produce little or no fishing of any kind.

But more important to the writer is the ambition, energy and the

THE BIBLE

This divine book of God is a source of inspiration. It informs and stimulates. There is no better means of grace to those who read wisely. Every language and every generation find light and truth through its pages. It softens the pillow for heads that are weary with care and pain; it is a defense for all who are troubled with the doubts and fears of life. "It is a lamp unto our feet and a light to our pathway." It is a weapon in our hands for the defense of righteousness. It slays its enemies with the x-rays of vital truth.

The Bible is a soul tonic, a spiritual stimulant, a weapon of offense, the "Shadow of a Rock in a weary land" where the soul may find renewal of strength, courage, and understanding needed to run the journey of life.

The Bible is superior to all other books in its moral tone and its spiritual ideals. It assures us that we are dear to the heart of God. It reveals and meets the needs of human life. It is the key to men's hearts. Portions of the Bible are thousands of years old yet it comes to us full of life, freshness and vitality and points the way of escape from the dangers of modern life. Truly it contains a unity of plan and purpose.

The Bible has been the cornerstone of the best homes. It was first used by Christians in the home. In the home it will do more for development of character than anywhere else. The Bible should be given a place in the things the family does together. It takes real effort to find time and place to study the Word of God. Its successful use in the home lies with the parents. The entire family can sweeten their lives through its use.

Our object as Christians is to reveal the glorious Christ of the Bible, to bring consolation and healing to the perplexed and to help men see the way of salvation.

"ON BORROWED TIME" OFFERS PLEASANT EVENING AND UNUSUAL STORY AT BARN

By Bill Rodgers

"On Borrowed Time," is a quiet sort of play that still builds up to a pretty fair climax and in so doing provokes both a laugh and a tear and leaves you wondering until almost the final line, just how things will turn out.

It is an unusual play, from the standpoint of story. If we attempted to explain it to you, it would sound fantastic, perhaps, but as the story progresses on the Barn stage, you sort of go along with it and accept it as it is.

The acting of Walter Smith, as Gramps, is good, very good. He plays a subdued part with considerable force and realism; our only complaint is that his voice is a shade weak.

Dickie Turner, as the boy, Pud, also is excellent; it is between these two that the aforementioned laughs and tears develop.

Mac Halladay was not at his best Sunday evening, being somewhat inconsistent in character; Elfrieda Allen does a fine job in a supporting, character role.

Solid support also comes from Elizabeth Myers, Blaine Graham, June Pixton and Ken Clifford, not so solid from J. H. Winters. Minor parts are played by Chris Perry, Pat Peasley, Dave Weaver, Noel Wheeler and Marx Bandy.

All in all, "On Borrowed Time" shapes up as a good evening's entertainment. The imperfections are minor, the over-all effect is an enjoyable, solid and well-staged production.

Next performances are slated for the Barn September 11, 12 and 13.

MILLION TONS OF GRAPES WILL GO ON TRAYS

Annual raisin harvest was started this week in the San Joaquin valley, with a million tons of fresh grapes expected to go on trays during the season.

Crop this year is from 10 days to two weeks late. Value of the crop is estimated at from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000.

PUBLIC NOTICE

ORDINANCE NO. 530

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING ORDINANCE NO. 382 BY THE ADOPTION OF ADDITIONAL PARTS OF THE SUPPLEMENTAL ZONING MAP OF THE COUNTY OF TULARE.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF TULARE DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1: Paragraph B of Section 3 of Ordinance No. 382 is hereby amended by adding thereto a new part classifying as R-1 the real property described therein, said new part to be known as Part 19 and to read as follows:

Part 19:
(a) Subdivision Tract No. 157, recorded in the Office of the County Recorder in Maps, Volume 20, at Page 49, is classified R-1.

SECTION 2: This Ordinance is declared to be an emergency ordinance necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, safety and general welfare, and shall become effective immediately upon the passage hereof. The facts constituting the necessity for its being effective immediately are as follows:

Ordinance No. 352 of the County of Tulare, commonly known as the Zoning Ordinance, establishes a procedure for the passage and adoption of detailed zoning maps. These procedures necessarily involve a considerable period of time in preparation, publication and hearings. By reason of the rapid development occurring within the County of Tulare and particularly within the areas included in the Part herein adopted, the procedure established in said Ordinance No. 352 would be ineffectual in the prevention of damage to existing improvements and land uses and detrimental to the general health, safety and welfare of that area. For these reasons it is necessary to adopt this Ordinance as an interim provision for the protection of public health, safety and general welfare, until such time as the regular processing can be consummated for the adoption of formal and detailed plans governing the area herein involved.

SECTION 3: This Ordinance shall become effective immediately upon its passage, and shall be published once in The Farm Tribune, a newspaper printed and published in the County of Tulare, State of California, together with the names of the members of the Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same.

THE FOREGOING ORDINANCE was passed and adopted by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Tulare, State of California, on the 25th day of August, 1953, at a regular meeting of said Board, duly and regularly convened on said day by the following vote:

NEW COUNTY ORGANIZATION WILL WORK TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS TO CHILDREN RESULTING FROM ADULT CARELESSNESS

Twenty-eight Tulare county activities. Organizations to be represented on the council are: Farm Bureau, Grange, 4-H clubs, FFA, boy and girl Scouts, P.T.A.s, all men's and women's clubs, city and county governments, county and city school systems, Red Cross, representatives from farm implement dealers, Highway patrol, automobile clubs and insurance companies. The organization meeting will be held in the County Chamber of Commerce, Municipal Auditorium, Visalia, on a date to be announced later.

House fires claimed the lives of three; one child died from clothing burns; eight children drowned while at play, one while bathing; five children were killed while walking on streets or highways; automobile accidents claimed the lives of three children; two children died in automobiles from carbon monoxide poisoning; one twelve year old "accidentally" shot himself; one died after falling off a bicycle; one suffocated while sleeping.

"This death toll of our children because of someone's carelessness is simply appalling," said County Farm Adviser Maurice Hogan this week. "It should be the serious concern of every father and mother, every child, every citizen, every organization in Tulare county. And we are going to do something. Plans are now being formulated for organizing the Tulare County Safety council which will examine the causes of accidental death of both children and adults in our county. Then educational campaigns will be initiated to help everyone, both young and old, to become safety conscious."

Hogan said that safety in the home, on the farm and on the highway will be stressed. "When our program gets into high gear," he continued, "we hope to make every day safety day for every man, woman and child in Tulare county."

Every community will be invited to cooperate in Safety Council

MORE HOMES

Fifty-two homes will be completed by Taylor and Wheeler in the Baker tract just east of the golf course by December 1; first 20 homes in the unit will be ready by the fifteenth of the month. The tract has been turned down for annexation by city fathers; final unsurmountable obstacle, curbs and gutters; Taylor and Wheeler said they could not afford them; the city said curbs and gutters or no annexation. The firm is now working out details of another development north of town.

STAR CHAMBER

We are told that at least one member of the present city council favors some kind of closed council meeting to iron out things in general before the group meets in public. We trust that other members of the council hold firm in their stand against closed sessions. "We the people" have a right to know everything any elected official does in his official capacity. Dictators thrive on the closed session.

BUSINESS

Wally's Men's Store is ready to go — Official opening Friday and Saturday at 507 N. Main. Right across the street Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dungan have opened a coffee and donut shop in the old City Bakery location. The Dungans live in Wasco; operate bakeries in Wasco and Shafter. They have more extensive plans for their Porterville spot. C. C. and Jack Kenyon have opened a rod and gun shop at 1100 West Olive. Most Main street merchants will be open until 9:00 p.m. on Friday, rather than Saturday, starting this Friday. Appears that the country towns are becoming Friday night, instead of Saturday night towns.

MAIN STREET EXTENDED

A circular Main street that might extend from highway 65 through Quaking Aspen meadow, down the Western Divide highway, through Johnsondale, down Kern canyon and back to 65 at Bakersfield was visualized by Porterville business men on a weekend tour, conducted by Chamber Manager Joe Elliott, from Porterville to Johnsondale via the Western Divide and Dome rock. It is probably news to some that a road, accommodating cars, now exists between Johnsondale and Quaking Aspen. Problem is improvement. Cooperation between the federal government and logging interests seems to be an answer. On the trip were Mayor Les Hamilton, City Manager Charles Cummings, Chamber President Nick Joannides, Jerry Hildebrand, Bill Cone, John Daybell, Homer Wood, Paul Moore, Bob Board, Lucien Schmittou, Alden Munson, Darwin Chamberlain and from the Sequoia National Forest, Supervisor Eldon Ball and Al Wuoltee.

RECREATION

VISITORS COMPARE LEBANON WITH TULARE COUNTY

Two agricultural students from Lebanon found Tulare county interesting while on a visit recently. As guests of the Extension service of the University of California they were shown points of interest by Wally Schreder of the Tulare County Farm Advisors office. They also visited some citrus and olive groves with Farm Advisor Karl Opitz.

One of the visitors, Fouad Mereb, is an owner of a 600 acre olive and citrus plantation. The other visitor, Adnan Timsah, will become director of Lebanon Agricultural extension when he returns home next year. Both men graduated from the American university at Beirut.

The visitors were particularly impressed by the size and productivity of citrus and olive trees. In Lebanon, they pointed out, it is so windy that orange and lemon trees must be planted in hedge rows. Farmers keep these trees close to the ground to facilitate harvesting and to avoid wind damage.

Olives are pruned severely according to our standards and are kept free of dead wood. Along the coast, where olives grow, irrigation is not generally practiced but the groves are cultivated about five times a year.

Tulare county is comparable to Lebanon in the respect that it is highly diversified. On the other hand, Lebanon has spots where bananas are intercropped with citrus trees, the visitors report.

TAX SALE IS ANNOUNCED FOR SEPTEMBER 8

J. A. Janelli, Tulare County Tax collector, announced this week the setting of the date for the sale at public auction of several parcels of tax-deeded property in Tulare county.

The property consists of eleven separate groups of lots and small acreages, in the southwestern part of the county, amounting to approximately 75 acres. Minimum bids of $20.00 per acre have been set.

Mr. Janelli points out that this property is in the area which is being considered by a major oil company as the site for an exploratory well. The company has already leased several thousand acres, and signified its intention of having a representative at the sale to offer an exploratory lease to the successful bidders.

The sale will be held in the tax collector's office in the Court House hall of records, 210 N.

ANNUAL "HOSSCAR" PARTY BEING PLANNED AS "BIGGEST AND BEST EVER" WITH DATE SET FOR SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 19

The Barn Theater is going all out to make this year's fifth annual "Hoss-car Award Party" the biggest and best ever.

Big event of the evening will be presentation of small ceramic "Hoss-cars" to the best actors and actresses in 10 different categories. These are picked by ballot from the plays done at the Barn during this past season by the membership of the Barn Theater. This year they will be presented by Mercedes McCambridge, herself an award winner for professional work in radio and motion pictures, including the Academy Award in Hollywood.

The party will also include entertainment and fun for everyone who attends. One item on the entertainment bill will be the presentation of a 30-minute, sophisticated one-act comedy entitled "In 1999." Appearing in this will be Kit Tewksbury, Nancy Lumley and Blaine Graham. Mr. Graham will double in entertainment and also present his own unique "bar-room piano" styling.

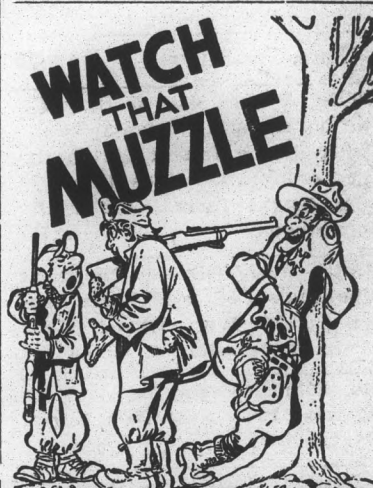

A short scene from the best play of the past year (according to the ballots) will also be presented. Senator J. Howard Williams will be master of ceremonies for the evening.

The party will be held in and around the new Barn Theater building on S. Grevilla St., in Porterville, and will include a formal dedication and opening of
